Capital planning process

- Debt planning starts with the capital planning process
- Capital planning process occurs annually and may cover multiple years
- Often, using cash, grants to fund all capital projects is not feasible
- Shortfalls in capital funding can be supplemented by borrowing/debt issuance process
- Debt planning can commence a year or more before the issuance/funding date
- Each bond issue should be part of a "plan of finance"
- The plan of finance will determine the purpose of the financing, estimated terms, timing, security, method of sale and other details

Bond issuance process

- Once the plan of finance is in place, there are three big steps to bond issuance
  - Authorization
  - Documentation and rating process
  - Sale and closing process
- The plan of finance and method of sale will dictate if a rating is needed
  - Capital markets bond issuance - Long term rating
  - Capital markets note issuance - Short term rating
  - Bank purchase or private placement - not rated
- Rating agencies will review all outstanding debt including private placements, State loans (OWDA) and contingent liabilities/pledges.

When do I need a rating?

- If you are planning on issuing bonds in the capital market, a bond rating is typically sought to indicate credit quality and attract investors
- Bonds sold without ratings have much higher interest rates
- What if I don't have a rating?
  - If borrowing long term – establish an inaugural rating with a national rating agency
- What if I am already rated?
  - Request a rating on a new issuance of bonds
- What if I am rated, but don't plan on issuing for awhile?
  - Rating surveillance
  - Provide annual audit/ACFR

What will my rating be?

- Rating agencies publish specific rating criteria and methodologies
- Methodologies are specific to the security type and borrower type
- Online tools available to help determine rating level/scale
- Municipal advisors and underwriters can assist in preliminary evaluation and likely outcomes of the bond rating process

Credit Ratings: What's the Big Deal?

Understanding S&P Global's Ratings

- Credit ratings are an evaluation of an issuer's ability and willingness to pay debt in a timely manner
- Credit ratings are forward looking
- The Ratings scale is relative and based on the creditworthiness of an issuer or credit quality of an individual debt issue, from strongest to weakest, within a universe of credit risk
  - The rating scale provides a basis for comparison across asset classes, geographies, and peers
- Criteria provide the analytic framework to derive the rating opinion
  - Different criteria for different obligator and security types
- Credit ratings are not a recommendation to buy or hold a security instrument
- S&P Global ratings are opinions, not guarantees of credit quality or exact measures of the probability that a particular issuer or particular debt issue will default

S&P Global's Ratings Scale

- AAA

- Investment Grade: Extremely strong capacity to meet financial commitments

- AA

- Investment Grade: Very strong capacity to meet financial commitments

- A

- Investment Grade: Strong capacity to meet financial commitments, but somewhat susceptible to economic conditions and changes in circumstances

- BBB

- Investment Grade: Adequate capacity to meet financial commitments, but more subject to adverse economic conditions

- BB, B, CCC, CC, C, D

- Speculative Grade

Determining a Credit Rating

How is a rating determined?

We evaluate issuers based on credit fundamentals and issues/series of bonds on security type, pursuant to the applicable criteria.

U.S. Governments Criteria published September 9, 2024 – 10,700 public ratings nationwide

- Consolidates criteria for states, counties, municipalities, school districts, and special government districts.
- We expect approximately 95% will remain unchanged.
- Credits placed Under Criteria Observation (UCO) will be reviewed within six months.

Institutional Framework

- Predictability
- Revenue/Expenditure Balance and Support
- Transparency and Accountability

Individual Credit Profile

- Economy
- Financial Performance
- Reserves and Liquidity
- Management
- Debt and Liabilities

Credit Fundamentals

- Financial profiles are strong, with median available reserves of approximately 79% for municipalities and 49.6% for counties, supported by recently strong revenue growth for cities and counties
- Most funding for municipalities and counties is derived from local revenue sources, including property, income, and sales taxes; reliance on state support from the state's local government fund has waned since cuts during the Great Recession
- Fixed costs, such as debt, pension, and other postemployment benefits payments, are currently moderate and manageable
